

Paul is a naturalized Canadian citizen born in the UK having immigrated with his family after World War II. After a long career in both the public and private sectors, Paul retired from NavCanada after 18 years. Looking for something to keep his mind active and to continue to hone his skills in data analysis, he turned to genealogy and family history. This has turned into the perfect project, using all his skills and having the added benefit of being a project that is both never ending and ever expanding. Paul joined BIFHSGO during the pandemic and found many friendly colleagues who share this passion.
