

Bruce is a relatively new BIFHSGO member with over 25 years of experience in genealogy and family history research. He has traced his family roots in West Yorkshire to the 1400s and in Devon to the 1600s.

A retired federal public servant with a background in IT and research analysis, he combines technical skills with traditional methods and has a particular interest in genetic genealogy, heraldry, medieval wills, and military history. He is as interested in the stories and historical context behind his research as he is in the facts themselves.
