

Sadie De Finney has a long-standing passion for the Celtic nations and never tires of learning about Celtic history and folklore—and about Scotland and Ireland in particular. She has more recently parlayed her research skills into the enthusiastic exploration of genealogy and family history. Plans for another trip across the pond—this time to the Emerald Isle—are again in progress! Sadie holds an International Masters in Business Administration with a specialty in cross-cultural communication, and is also an Autism Spectrum advocate.
